PRODUCT DESCRIPTION

Ca. 1898 bicycle with hickory wheels

The frame of this ca. 1898 bicycle is of conventional design, but the wheels are not: rims, spokes and hubs are made of strong and resilient hickory.

Before the turn of the century a number of -mostly American- manufacturers introduced this type of wheel on bicycles.

The most notable of these manufacturers was Sterling Elliot.

This bicycle is in good condition.

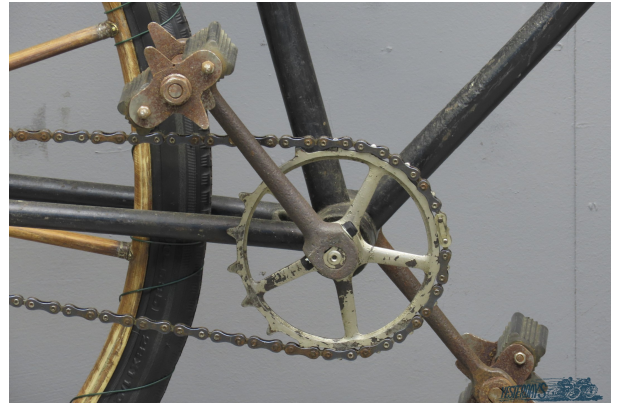

The contemporary padded saddle is a "Hunt", made in Westboro, Mass.

The adjustable handlebars are made of bamboo and have cork grips.

The cranks are adjustable and there's a French "La Parisienne" oil lamp mounted.
